Membership has its benefits!

The Canadian Association for Health Services and Policy Research (CAHSPR) is the largest and most diverse organization of its kind in Canada, with members from across the spectrum of health services and policy research.

Our members, including both researchers and decision-makers, enjoy a range of benefits, including:

- A significantly reduced rate for the annual CAHSPR conference. (The discount for regular members is $125.) The conference, with its stimulating presentations and its cross-disciplinary and researcher/decision-maker networking opportunities, has been ranked by members as the most important benefit CAHSPR provides.
- A free subscription to the electronic version of Healthcare Policy, a new quarterly Canadian health services and policy journal being launched in 2005.
- Weekly delivery by email of the CAHSPR listserv, providing timely information on career opportunities, conferences and events of interest to members, links to course materials for student members, updates on research/policy items of interest to members, and much more.
- The support of an organization committed to fostering interdisciplinary research collaborations and to strengthening the connection between researchers and research users within Canada's healthcare system.
